

Update on the food safety incident during Food Resilience Preparedness Programme

15 April 2025 – SATS pleased with result of SFA, MOH investigations into food safety

SATS welcomes results of the investigations conducted by the Singapore Food Agency and Ministry of Health on ambient Ready-to-Eat (RTE) meals produced by SATS. We are pleased that our ambient RTE meals have been cleared of being the cause of the food safety incident during this year's Food Resilience Preparedness Programme. During the investigations, SATS ambient RTE production facilities, kitchen staff and operational practices were put through a comprehensive review to assess food safety across the production cycle. We hope that the SFA and MOH findings offer additional assurance of the high food safety standards in place within SATS kitchens. We take this opportunity to emphasise and assure everyone that food safety is our highest priority.
